Is Examined.

Mr. W. E. Rankin, ex-chairman of the Strathcona city council, was up for examination for discovery in the supreme court yesterday in connection with an action which has been started against the members of the late Strathcona council.

The action is being brought by A. E. Latimer, 224 Ave. 12, who was the former alderman of the city for that ward, while acting as trustee of certain taxpayers and frontagers in the city of Strathcona, they did not accept the latest paving contract, thereby causing a loss to those frontagers.

The action is a test case and upon the decision of the court, if the case comes before a judge of the Supreme court, will rest a question of much importance to manufacturers, contractors and others as well as to every city and rural council.

The late city council of Strathcona in January last, shortly before they sent out a notice, let a contract for 130,000 yards of paving at $2.35 per yard and thousands of feet of curbing at 85 cents a foot. The contract, involving a sum of about half a million dollars, was let to the British and the National Paving companies.

It will be contended that the aldermen were not bound to accept the lowest tender and that they were entitled, in the interests of the taxpayers, to exercise their discretion, having regard to such matters as the quality and durability of the work and materials employed. The contract to which the action refers was one of the largest paving contracts ever let in Western Canada.

The defendants cited in the action are Mayor Davies and the following aldermen of the late city council: Richards, Tipson, Calder, Vogel, Rankin, Bradford, Loughlin and Pollard. The counsel for the plaintiff is J. M. Lovell and for the defence City Solicitor J. C. F. Brown, R. C. Jamieson, R. C. Chivers, and Charles A. Grant for the National Pavers.

Mr. A. E. Rankin is leaving city for his home and the plaintiff asked to have his examination for discovery postponed, although if the action is proceeded with it is not expected that it will come on for trial before the end of the month. Rankin was chairman of the public works committee in the late city council.

or matters which had perhaps no cause to be brought up, but which were introduced. If we were defeated it was not upon the main issue which was submitted to the country, so far as the province was concerned and perhaps in Ontario also. We were defeated by the more homogeneous combination of elements which bind together people for destruction, but which would never hold together for construction. (Applause.)

"We had against us the Conservative party, led by Mr. Jordan, which was natural. Then we had against us the Liberal party, led by Mr. St. Laurent, and the Nationalist led by Mr. Bourassa. Had against us the British, led by I don't know who, and if we can believe the words of Mr. Burnham, the Conservative doctrine had small part in our defeat.

Reciprocity Negotiations.

Mr. W. L. Lauder, then entered upon a lengthy review of the reciprocity negotiations conducted by his government and gave a resume of practically all the arguments that were heard at the time of the late federal campaign. The declaration of the Conservative party had always been in favor of reciprocity and had been unable to attain it and had only opposed it when the Liberal government secured an agreement was made again and again.

"It is an open secret, which everybody knows, declared Sir Wilfrid, "that in the campaign held by the Conservative party to ascertain whether or not the agreement would be accepted, there was a great reaching of hearts before they finally decided to oppose the treaty. But when it was finally ascertained that the Liberal members from Toronto were opposed to that treaty, from that time on the Conservative party did its utmost to oppose the agreement. It was not that they had an ulterior motive as was even at the campaign stage.

"That was the attitude of the regular Conservative party headed by Mr. St. Laurent. The attitude of the disaffected Conservative headed by Mr. Monk. You people of Quebec who have had an experience of late election campaign the question of reciprocity was not discussed by

The followers of Mr. Monk. They were concerned especially with the naval question and the Manitoba school question which was supposed to have been settled twelve or fifteen years ago so far as the federal government was concerned. But they said that the Laurier-Greenway settlement of the school question was no settlement, but that if they went back to power there would be a real settlement of the question.

The Naval Law Prodiges.

You heard also their pledges to the people that if only the Laurier government was defeated the naval law would be wound off the statute books. That was the attitude of Mr. Monk and his Conservative followers.

As to the Nationalists, Sir Wilfrid said that he could not see any difference between their policy and that of the Conservative party, yet they were not so far from the truth when they took the attitude that the naval law was not satisfactory, the side objecting that it was too strong and that other that it was not strong enough.

"Thus," said Sir Wilfrid, "we had three forces from every side of the horizon centering upon us. Personally I never regretted the result, but I regretted it for the country. In view of what has taken place since September 21, I do not know that we should very much regret defeat because the consequence of that defeat has been the unmaking of the Nationalists and Conservatives of Quebec.

Before the election they were all Nationalists to get votes. After the election they were all Conservatives to get patronage from the government. There were men who believed in their doctrine and before the election denounced both Laurier and Borden when they agreed, the Borden had no job, commissionaire and even membership to give, they were no longer Nationalists, and were glad to eat out of Borden's hand and look on in silence.

Nationalists Unmasked.

One would suppose that they were men of honor who would be satisfied without the restoration of the separate schools in Manitoba and the repeal of the naval bill. Those believing that were deluded and deceived. The real Nationalists of the Quebec Nationalists and Conservatives do not spring from the heart; it springs from the stomach. When the stomach is full their eyes are closed and their ears are shut. It is worth being defeated to find this out and to show that the people who come before you and say that all questions can be settled from the view of a few men, are alone, irrespective of the other provinces are charlatans and demagogues.

"Now that eight months have passed since the late election, Sir Wilfrid declared that the time had come to look at the whole matter and consider the value of the objections raised to the main issue of reciprocity. It was what he had now to be followed, since it was far enough removed to be considered without bias and not tell you," he said, "that on the Conservative side froth and bubbles had been blown and argument and that they represented reciprocity as the first step toward the destruction of the country as represented as one between the British and American days for supremacy in Canada."

Great Problems Confronted.

Problems Sir Wilfrid pointed out that there were great problems confronting Canadian development. There was that of securing larger markets for Canadian products.

"I believe that reciprocity would have largely solved this problem," he continued, "but I am a constitutionalist and I accept the verdict of my fellow countrymen, but the problem is still there and is more acute form."

The problem existed in the east while in the western provinces larger markets were an indispensable necessity. There had been a large population into the western provinces and the problem was where would the crop go. Mr. Bennett of Calgary had visited Montreal and declared that unless the western provinces secured a larger market outlet, he would not answer for their allegiance.

"Did any of you hear him say that?" Sir Wilfrid asked.

There were cries of "Yes" from different parts of the hall.

"Well," observed Sir Wilfrid, smiling, "if that had come from me it would have been called treason but it was a strong Conservative Imperialist who said it. Continuing, he pointed out that the conditions which caused Mr. Bennett's utterance also caused Mr. Foster to go to Washington after getting the consent of three great railways.

Had to have Corporation's Consent.

Mr. Foster had to have the consent of the corporations. He went to Washington and got permission from the Interstate Commerce commission to ship grain south in the same terms as Port Arthur. This was the Borden Foster who made the working rule at the want of Canadian participation on the part of the Liberals in seeking a similar outlet.

Mr. Foster's dealing with the problem was not a solution, it was only a makeshift, the problem would be there again. Sir Wilfrid pointed out that the only effort of Mr. Foster to secure larger markets had been the making of a treaty with the West Indies.

"And horror of horrors, he negotilated his treaty in secret. I am not blaming him for that. We will judge the treaty when he brings it down. But how he did it all at my friend, Mr. Fielding, for conducting his negotiations in secret."

Mr. Foster's was Indian treaty. He would not solve the problem. He was reminded of John Dillinger, who declared when he was asked, "You are a vegetarian." "Yes, I once ate at the present government, and Sir Wilfrid was asking the president of larger markets to the extent of one year spending money."

Later Government's Work.

"During your first session we brought down the British preference, but the Borden government is content with one peace. It can destroy, but it cannot construct."

Continuing, Sir Wilfrid said that it might be well that the Liberal government was too busy otherwise, it is one year spending money."

"It reminds me of a young rake who had unexpectedly fallen heir to a large estate, long administered by careful hands, and, dazed and bewildered by his sudden fortune, buried his hands deep in the treasury, scattering it with riotous extravagance, to make up for the long period of forced abstinence."

When the government was not spending money it was making donations and appointments. Officers had descended upon it thick as locusts in Egypt.

"Only the other day Mr. Foster, surrounded, beset, buttonholed and affronted, uttered in a cry of despair, 'This is a damnable system.' It is when it is damnable administration," added Sir Wilfrid, and laughter.

The Naval Question.

The Liberal cabinet then turned his attention to the naval question. He looked to history for his inspiration, and directed attention to the direct by diverse positions Messrs. Borden and Monk had taken upon it. Although they both differed, they came to the same conclusion. The Liberal cabinet was divided, the elements that would reveal it right away. But a large estate, long administered by careful hands, and, dazed and bewildered by his sudden fortune, nounced desired by him for the government of such. The issue of British government is party government, but party government may make nothing less than a mere scramble for office, and that is the charge I have to make today against the men now in office at Ottawa. If there are any Conservatives in this audience, and there must be a few, they must say that charge is wrong. But I speak by the book when I say that not later than the week when the question of principle arose, for some of them we were told they were looking out to drink, and that in doing so, and the more so, as the minister, Hon. Mr. Monk, had on his side his voice and to the people the principle he had laid before the people of Quebec at the inauguration of his life and said he was rejected not to rebellion, not to the free.

We have heard in the past of reciprocity, justice and liberty to principles. Mr. Monk is not one of that class. It is only a year or so ago Mr. Monk was before the people of this province, giving an example to his younger men, when they told me he was the man of all others in the representation of the province of Quebec, who could be depended upon at all times to stand by his principles and be true to his principles. ### COMMISSIONERS FIX SCALE OF EXPENSES

Will Pay Expenses of Employees Who Are Required to Travel on the City's Business.

The city commissioners at their regular meeting yesterday fixed the scale of expenses that will be allowed city officials in future when they are travelling on the city's business. These figures are already graded, giving the commissioners the largest expense bill and going down the scale to the ordinary civic employee who must live on $2 a day if he wants the city to foot his bill. Under the new arrangement commissioners will be allowed $5 per day in addition to the regular railway fare, sleeper and chair car; superintendents of departments will be expected to economize a little. They are asked to keep their expenses to $4 a day, but are allowed the same extras as the commissioners.

The Understudy of the Sun is an efficient and economical heating apparatus that soon saves enough to pay for its initial cost.

McClary's "Sunshine" Furnace

Accountants and sub-heads of departments will not ride in their cars. They will be allowed $2 a day, but are expected to be content with the regular railway fare and a berth in the sleeper. All other civic employees are expected to do their travelling in the day time, as in their expenses the tax for a sleeper is cut out entirely. Their expense bill may be $2 per day and they are allowed the regular railway fare.

Superintendent McLean, of the waterworks department, will be the first official to come under this new order of things. The committee yesterday morning granted him leave of absence to attend the convention of the American Waterworks association at Louisville, Kentucky, which will be in session from June 3 to 8. Mr. McLean will receive $250 as expense money. He leaves this morning on the Grand Trunk Pacific, going to Louisville by way of Chicago.

W. T. Woodroff was appointed superintendent of the street railway. He will receive a salary of $4,000 per year for the balance of the year and will be expected to start work with the city by the first of July. If not earlier, Robert Knight, at present superintendent of the system, will continue to fill the position until Mr. Woodroff starts work.

FOREST FIRES RAGING IN NEWFOUNDLAND

St. John's, New Foundland, May 28.—Rapidly spreading forest fires have been raging over extensive areas near the pulp mills of the A. E. Hood Company since yesterday noon, and several large fires have started along the railway line. The telegraph lines have been burned west of Norris Arm, and no reports have been received from there. The property owners are applying for additional insurance. Several villages lie in the path of the flames.

SUPERINTENDENT OF BUFFALO PARK HAS RECEIVED DISMISSAL

Ed. Ellis, for Fourteen Years in Charge of Buffalo, Fired By Rogers.

HAS NEVER BEEN AN ACTIVE POLITICIAN

No Reason Is Given By Department for His Summary Dismissal.

Ed. Ellis, superintendent of the 4,000 acre buffalo park at Wainwright, is the latest government official to lose his official head under the new Federal government. Mr. Ellis has had charge of the government buffalo for 14 years. When the buffalo were first placed at Banff National park Mr. Ellis was placed in charge and when the Pablo herd was bought by the Dominion government Mr. Ellis was placed in charge of the Wainwright farm. His success with the buffalo and the excellent shape in which the farm is in at the present has been the delight of the numerous visitors to the park. There has never been fault found with the way in which he has conducted the immense range and yet the other day he was in receipt of a communication from the department at Ottawa stating very tersely as follows: "After the 15th of June your services will no longer be required by the department."

There was no reason given, and there could not have been a reason given. Mr. Ellis has never upon any occasion mixed in any way in politics and it is a matter of record that very few of those who were intimately acquainted with him were aware of the side upon which he voted. His personal habits are of the most exemplary character. Yet he must go in order that a place may be made for some Conservative who exerted himself in aid of the successful government in the last election.

It will be impossible for the government to find a man who will replace Ed. Ellis, according to men in close touch with the work. As a promisee Ed. Ellis failed to do the job this morning. "It is one of the most glaring and flagrant cases of political injustice which I have ever known. I have known Ed. Ellis for a number of years and he is one of the cleanest and most efficient government officials with whom I am acquainted. The party to which he belonged was not known to me for some time after I became acquainted with him for he never mentioned in the political game at any time."
